Rupert Stache (Mr. Smoothface):

Morgan Stache (Dr. Stache): flashback character.

Substampede Captain (Nihongo Nohondes):

Captain Dread: born in Sardonia, an island in the Mediterranean. Son of a Royal Family. Instructed in military tactics during his childhood and adolescence. Named Captain of Sardonia ´s armed forces once he reached adulthood. His commendation ceremony as Lord of Sardonia and successor of his family´s reign was interrupted by the invasion of Il Douche's troops. Captain Dread was forced to abandon his land and his ship stranded in Blackspit Island.

Janus Vertrolikwoski (The Ventriloquist): not really a ventriloquist but an escaped mental patient who suffers from multiple personality disorder. He joined the circus masquerading as a ventriloquist to elude the authorities. Is the only one who can pronounce MGWDBTTGPnP correctly. Avoids conflicts like the plague (except for one of his personalities: Clash McTrevor, a drunken irish lumberjack) and is constantly changing between his various personalities:

- the aforementioned Clash McTrevor
- Rapoleon, a rapper who talks/raps in french medieval prose
- ambulance siren (won't STFU)

Midget Security Service:

Hightower (boss of the Midget Security Service): not much of his life prior to joining the circus is unknown, but Hightower was very violent during practice time when things didn't go his way. His new job at the Artificial Thundercano Hideout has brought out his admiration for

Spooch (Artificial Thundercano Hideout main entrance guard):

Bearded Lady: Born as Joanna Spitzbart, she started to develop a beard at an early age, much to the surprise of her parents, both of whom made sure her daughter mastered the ancient self-defense art of Monkey-steals-the-Peach in order to scare off potential bullies and people who'd make fun of her appearance. The hardened lady-thing found in the circus an opportunity to fit into a tight group of people who were very different from the bunch she was rejected by constantly.
She still uses makeup and straightens her beard, has a very deep voice and a confrontational nature to boot. Also, sleeps with her eyes open and standing.

The Air Guitars:

Serious Bidnez:

Zoncho (boss):

Cutter McGreen: teaches the Maniacal Laughter 101 class at Evil Deeds College

Bruise Li: teaches the Kung FOOM! class at Evil Deeds College (spin off material right here dudes!). A former crime fighter, along his trusty sidekick, Jude O'Chop, Li fell from grace after being framed by his arch-enemy, crime lord Dragonballs, of not -----.

Disappointed by the legal system, he hanged his void-belt (the ultimate achievable rank in Kung FOOM! by any mortal) and accepted a position at Evil Deeds College, without knowing the true purpose of the educational institution.
Of a reflexive look, he talks in quotes, sometimes, riddled with wisdom, other times, completely nonsensical, but most of the time, a bit of both.

The Mech-alomaniac: teaches the Diabolic Machines of Destruction class at Evil Deeds College. A blacksmith by profession, The Mech-alomaniac had pillaged cities for years in his majestic mechanical creations, until the World Blacksmith School revoked his license (which allowed him full credit at raw material stores for his creations around the world) .
Since then, he's accepted a position as teacher at Evil Deeds College. He earns a few extra bucks repairing stuff at the Artificial Thundercano Hideout, never in a complete manner tho, as to not run out of the extra income. His ego is enormous and minimizes the achievements of others.

A Baby: A Baby is one of the most feared and respected (if such thing exists among evildoers) ex-members of the League of Terror. Formerly known as Facepuncher, he's a 2.5 meters, 300 pounds of thundering muscle of a beast who mumbles like a baby after he fell on his head from a bridge during a fight with his arch enemy El Chulethal. He's fond of his candy collection and would go to great lengths to punish anyone who dares to meddle with it. He's afraid of midgets.

Lord Goat: noone really knows how Lord Goat came to be the master of the League of Terror, but legend has it that when Rominic DuVile chose the island as the base of operations for the League, he found the mysterious bovine already sitting on the Throne of Horrors, inside the Artificial Thundercano Hideout. Not one of many words, Lord Goat commands the organization through his hunchback interpreter, Mocus.

Mocus: has been Lord Goat's official interpreter since the new beginning of the League on the island. Being the punchline of constant jokes among the League members, his loyalty is indisputably at the side of the evil bovine master. He's obliging, calm and has a squeaky voice.
